"To bring together the records of the past and to house them in buildings where they will be preserved for the use of men living in the future, a nation must believe in three things. It must believe in the past. It must believe in the future. It must, above all, believe in the capacity of its people so to learn from the past that they can gain in judgment for the creation of the future."

FOREWORD

The Inventory of the State Archives of Louisiana is one of a number of guides to historical materials prepared throughout the United States by workers on Historical Records Survey projects of the Work Projects Administration. The publication herewith presented, an inventory of the archives of the Courts of Appeal of Louisiana, is No. 3 of Series II, The Judiciary.

The Historical Records Survey program was undertaken in the winter of 1935-36 for the purpose of providing useful employment to needy unemployed historians, lawyers, teachers, and research and clerical workers. In carrying out this objective, the project was organized to compile inventories of historical materials, particularly the unpublished government documents and records which are basic in the administration of local governments, and which provide invaluable data for students of political, economic, and social history. Up to the present time approximately 1,400 Survey publications have been issued throughout the country. The archival guide herewith presented is intended to meet the requirements of day-to-day administration by the officials of the state, and also the needs of lawyers, businessmen, and other citizens who require facts from the public records for the proper conduct of their affairs. The volume is so designed that it can be used by the historian in his research in unprinted sources in the same way he uses the library card catalog for printed sources.

The inventories produced by Historical Records Survey projects attempt to do more than give merely a list of records - they attempt further to sketch in the historical background of the state or other unit of government, and to describe precisely and in detail the organization and functions of the government agencies whose records they list. The state, county, town, and other local inventories for the entire country will, when completed, constitute an encyclopedia of state and local government as well as a bibliography of local archives.

The successful conclusion of the work of the Historical Records Survey projects, even in a single state, would not be possible without the support of public officials, historical and legal specialists, and many other groups in the community. Their cooperation is gratefully acknowledged.

The Survey program was organized by Luther H. Evans, who served as Director until March 1, 1940, when he was succeeded by Sargent B. Child. The Survey operates as a Nation-wide series of locally sponsored projects in the Division of Community Service Programs, of which Mrs. Florence Kerr, Assistant Commissioner, is in charge.

PREFACE

The Nation-wide WPA Historical Records Survey was organized to inventory state and local archives, early American imprints, church archives, and collections of manuscripts. In Louisiana, the Historical Records Survey now operates as a unit of the State-wide Records Project, which is sponsored by the Department of Archives, Louisiana State University, and some seventy local governmental bodies.

The present inventory of the records of the Courts of Appeal of Louisiana is a section of the Inventory of the State Archives of Louisiana being prepared by the Survey. Emmett Asseff, Assistant Project Technician, is the Project Supervisor responsible for this and succeeding volumes in the series. Laurine Delbasty was of invaluable assistance in compiling the preliminary data used in this volume as well as for her editorial criticisms. The initial inventory of the records was made in 1940. Louis Hermann, Forms and Entry Editor, made the final recheck of the inventory during May and June 1941. The records, listed in this publication, include all that could be found and are arranged under the office of origin or of final destination and by subject. Although a condensed form of entry is used, information is given as to the limiting dates of all extant records, the contents of the individual series, the location of the records, and other general information.

The Inventory of the State Archives of Louisiana will, when completed consist of a volume on state government in general in Louisiana and four individual series on the state agencies. The four series will include agencies in the following fields: 1) legislative, 2) judicial, 3) executive, and 4) miscellaneous and independent agencies. The series will be subdivided in accordance with the number of agencies grouped under each. This volume is numbered Series II, No. 3, to indicate its position in the full series. The organization of the state archives inventory is based very largely upon the functional organization of the reorganized state government under Act No. 47 of 1940 which was validated by Act No. 384 of 1940, amending the Constitution of 1921. However, the supreme court voided the amendment in Graham et al. v. Sam H. Jones et al., and so the eventual organization of the state government is not exactly clear at this time.

The publications of the Survey are distributed, under the sponsorship of the Department of Archives of the Louisiana State University, to state and local public officials and libraries in Louisiana and to a limited number of libraries and governmental agencies outside the state. Requests for information should be addressed to the State Supervisor, or to Dr. E. A. Davis, Archivist, University, Louisiana. The Survey is indebted to officials of the courts of appeal and of the district courts throughout the state for their generous cooperation.

Explanatory Notes

Titles of Records. Exact titles of records are written in solid capitals without brackets (see entry 3). In the absence of titles, descriptive titles have been assigned, which are written in solid capitals and enclosed in brackets (see entry 2). If a record title is not descriptive of the contents of the record, an assigned explanatory title (or explanatory words), written with initial capitals and enclosed in parentheses, has been added (see entry 12). The current or most recent title of a record is used as the entry title and title variation is indicated (see entry 8).

Dates. The first and last dates of the record are shown in the title line of the entry. One date followed by two dashes signifies that this record is current, as 1924--. Continuous records are shown by a hyphen between the beginning and closing dates, as 1908-19. Gaps in the records are indicated by a comma between groups of inclusive dates, as 1893-96, 1898-1908, 1910--.

Labeling. Figures or letters in parentheses, following the number of volumes, file boxes, or other types of containers, indicate the labeling. If no labeling is indicated, it may be assumed that there is none.

Dimensions. The dimensions of volumes, file boxes and maps are given in inches.

Discontinuance. Where no statement is made that the record was discontinued at the last date shown in the entry, it could not be definitely established that such was the case. Where no comment is made on the absence of prior, subsequent, or intermediate records, no definite information could be obtained.

Description of Records. The description of the contents of a record applies only to the current or most recent record unless a change in contents is actually shown in a record entry.

Condition of Records. Records are in good condition unless otherwise indicated.

Location of Records. When all or the majority of the records of an office have a common location, the location is indicated in the last sentence of the office essay instead of in each individual entry.

Cross References. The title-line cross reference (see entry 14) is used to show that a record completes a series, and is complemented by a body-of-entry reference (see entry 3). The entry containing the title-line reference may be an artificial entry (see entry 5) designed to give prominence to records, which, though differing in character, are kept or recorded together. We also use this style of cross reference for the purpose of logically segregating differing types of records, which happened to have been recorded in the same book or are kept in the same series of file boxes.

Citations. Citations to the acts of the Legislatures and General Assemblies of the State of Louisiana refer to the act and section numbers.

THE COURTS OF APPEAL OF LOUISIANA

During Louisiana's early history the judiciary consisted of a supreme court, district courts, parish courts, and other minor courts. This, of necessity, resulted in thousands of cases being appealed to the supreme court, thus burdening that tribunal with many appeals which might easily have been heard and determined by other appellate courts. The Constitutional Convention of 1879 in order to relieve the congested docket of the supreme court and yet not deny the privilege of appeal created courts of appeal which would be courts of last resort in civil and probate matters not exceeding a specified amount. The supreme court, nevertheless, retained control over these inferior courts and could, in its discretion, review any case under the wide supervisory powers vested in it by the constitution.

Since the creation of the courts of appeal by the Constitution of 1879,(1) they have undergone many fundamental changes in organization and jurisdiction. The Courts of Appeal of Louisiana as originally established consisted of six circuits.(2) The structural organization of these courts remained in effect until a constitutional amendment of 1906 reorganized the intermediate courts.(3) Since 1907, there have been three courts of appeal known as the First Circuit Court of Appeal, the Second Circuit Court of Appeal, and the Court of Appeal for the Parish of Orleans.(4)

The composition of these intermediate courts has been subject to much revision since 1879. The Constitution of 1879 provided that each of the courts of appeal would be composed of two judges elected by the legislature in joint session.(5) Radical changes in the membership of the courts of appeal were incorporated into the organic law by the Constitution of 1898. Each court was to be composed of the two appellate judges until July 1, 1900, from that date until July 1, 1904, of the appellate judge whose term had not expired and a district court judge designated by the supreme court, and after July 1, 1904, of two district court judges assigned by the supreme court provided that no district judge was to be named to a court of appeal which reviewed decisions of his court.(6) These changes applied to only five circuits. Entirely different provisions were made for the Court of Appeal for the Parish of Orleans. After August 1, 1900, this court was to hear appeals not only from the Parish of Orleans but also from the parishes of Jefferson, St. Charles, Plaquemines, and St. Bernard.(7) The court was to be composed of three judges elected by the voters of the parishes comprising the circuit.(8) Since 1907, each of the courts of appeal has been composed of three judges. The first and second circuits are subdivided into three districts, from each of which a judge is elected. The judges of the Court of Appeal for the Parish of Orleans are elected from the entire circuit.(9)

The qualifications of judges of the courts of appeal have, with minor changes, remained the same since the creation of the intermediate courts in 1879. In order to be eligible for membership on a court of appeal, a candidate must fulfill the following requirements: 1) United States citizenship, 2) qualified elector of the state, 3) a practicing attorney in the state for at least 6 years,(10) and 4) an actual resident of the district for at least 2 years immediately preceding the election.(11)

The members of the courts of appeal throughout the state are required to take the oath of office before assuming their duties as officials of the state. The judge must swear or affirm that he will "faithfully and impartially" administer the duties incumbent on his office and that he will support the constitution and laws of the state and the United States.(12) After the oath is administered, the judge is officially a servant of the state and legally capable of performing all functions devolving on his office.

The term of office of the judges of the courts of appeal has always been fixed by the constitution and has remained substantially the same since 1879. From the creation of the appellate courts until 1921, the judges served overlapping terms of 8 years.(13) Since 1921, the judges have been elected for 12 years.(14) The method of selecting state judges has been for many years a controversial issue among scholars, students, and members of the bar.(15) The chief objectives in determining how the state judges should be selected are to remove the judiciary from political manipulations and to secure the selection of able and noted lawyers by groups capable of making such appointments.

Until 1907, the judges of the courts of appeal received salaries of $4,000 per year.(16) A constitutional amendment of 1906 fixed the compensation of the judges of the first and second circuit courts of appeal at $4,000 and those of the Court of Appeal for the Parish of Orleans at $5,000.(17) This remained in effect until the Constitution of 1921 increased the salaries of all the judges to $6,000.(18) However, the legislature was empowered to increase the compensation fixed in the constitution if two-thirds of the members concurred.(19) Acting in pursuance of this authority, the legislature in 1928 increased the salaries of judges of the courts of appeal to $8,000.(20) The City of New Orleans may, in its discretion, pay an additional sum, not exceeding $1,000 per year, to each of the judges of the Court of Appeal for the Parish of Orleans.(21) Since 1920, the judges of the courts of appeal have received traveling expenses while on circuit, at the rate of $6 per day.(22) The clerk is required to travel with the court of appeal when it is on circuit but received no additional compensation.(23)

During the nineteenth century and the early part of the twentieth, no provision was made for retiring judges of the courts of appeal. Elaborate provisions for the retirement of the judges are now incorporated in the organic law of the state. A judge of any appellate court may retire at two-thirds pay under any one of the following conditions: 1) age of 65 after having served on a court of record 20 years immediately preceding retirement, 2) age of 70 if he has served as a judge of a court of record 15 years immediately preceding retirement, and 3) any age after having served more than 25 years continuously as a judge of a court of record. A judge must retire at the age of 80, and if he has served 20 years as a judge of a court of record, he will receive full pay for life. If a judge becomes incapacitated mentally or physically and the majority of the remaining members certify that fact, he is retired at two-thirds pay.(24)

All of the state constitutions have established methods for removing inefficient and corrupt officials. Judges of the courts of appeal may be removed from office in three ways, namely: 1) impeachment, 2) address of the legislature, and 3) judgment of the supreme court.(25)

Since the Constitution of 1879 made no specific provision for filling vacancies in the courts of appeal, the governor with the approval of the senate, acting under a general authorization, filled them.(26) The legislature in 1884 authorized the legislature, sitting in joint session, to fill vacancies in the courts of appeal for the unexpired term.(27) The Constitution of 1898 provided only for vacancies in the Court of Appeal for the Parish of Orleans. Vacancies in the membership of this court were to be filled for the unexpired term by the governor with the approval of the senate.(28) When the courts of appeal were reorganized by amendment in 1906, provision was made for filling vacancies in the first and second circuits by the governor with the approval of the senate until the next congressional election.(29) The Constitution of 1913 continued the two different methods for filling vacancies in the courts of appeal.(30) Since 1921, vacancies in the courts of appeal have been filled by the governor with the approval of the senate until the next congressional election at which time the vacancy is filled for the unexpired term.(31)

Judges of the courts of appeal may be called to the supreme court under any one of the following conditions: first, a majority of the court cannot reach a decision,(32) second, the docket of the court is congested,(33) third, there is a vacancy in the membership of the court,(34) and fourth, the court is attempting to remove one of its own members.

(35) Since 1921, the supreme court has been authorized to call in two judges of the courts of appeal to form a third division in case the docket of the court becomes congested, but not more than one may sit in any division at the same time.(36) For any cause sufficient for impeachment, the judges of the supreme court may be removed by a court of not less than seven, composed of the supreme court justices not connected with the case and a sufficient number of judges of the courts of appeal, oldest in point of service.(37) Vacancies in the membership of the supreme court are filled by the supreme court which must select a judge of a court of appeal from a supreme court district other than the one in which the vacancy occurs, but if 2 years or more remains of the term, the governor must call a special election to fill the vacancy.(38) Provision has also been made for any vacancy that might occur in the membership of a court of appeal. District judges may be called to serve on a court of appeal in any one of the following circumstances: first, the docket is congested,(39) second, judges of the courts of appeal are serving on the supreme court,(40) and third, two judges cannot concur.(41)

The jurisdiction of the courts of appeal has varied considerably since 1879. Their authority and power depend largely on how the supreme court interprets their jurisdiction as well as its own. If the supreme court interprets its own jurisdiction literally, then this necessarily increases the scope of authority of the appellate courts. On the other hand, if the supreme court interprets its own powers broadly or states it will use them in its discretion, the jurisdiction of the courts of appeal is certainly restricted.(42)

Soon after the creation of the appellate courts, the supreme court ruled that they were amenable to its supervisory power and in that respect were inferior courts.(43) The supreme court exercises control over the courts of appeal chiefly through the use of the broad supervisory power vested in it. This court is given control and general supervision over all inferior courts with authority to issue writs of certiorari, prohibition, mandamus, quo warranto and other remedial writs in aid of its original, appellate, and supervisory jurisdiction.(44) In spite of this, the supreme court has consistently refused to exercise this broad authority, interpreting the clause rather literally, but it has, nevertheless, ruled that the authority granted is discretionary and would be used when the circumstances justified.(45) In this way, the supreme court may or it may not review a case except when the law specifically vests jurisdiction in it. Any but a discretionary supervisory power would result in almost every case being appealed to the supreme court, thus negating the attempts of recent constitutional conventions to relieve that court of unimportant cases which might easily be heard and determined by the courts of appeal.

The supreme court will exercise its supervisory jurisdiction over the courts of appeal under several conditions, chief of which are: first, to settle questions it deems of sufficient public importance,(46) second, to compel a court of appeal to try cases which do not exceed the maximum amount of its jurisdiction,(47) and third, to secure a uniformity of jurisprudence among the courts of appeal and the supreme court and to decide jurisdictional questions.(48) A case must present exceptional features in order to justify an application to the supreme court for review; otherwise the decision of the court of appeal will be sustained.(49)

The courts of appeal are authorized to certify questions of law to the supreme court for its instructions. The supreme court may either give its instructions which are binding or it may require the case to be certified to it for determination with the same authority and power as if on direct appeal.(50) The supreme court may, in its discretion, require by certiorari or otherwise cases to be certified to it by the courts of appeal for its review and determination provided that if there is in conflict a question of law in respect to the jurisprudence of the supreme court or one of the courts of appeal not already settled, the appeal shall be granted of right.(51) If a court of appeal certifies a question to the supreme court for its instructions, it is required to state the facts pertinent thereto, and the supreme court will not go further in the determination of the question. However, if the supreme court decides to grant a writ of certiorari or other remedial writ bringing the entire case up to it for review and determination, it will make its own determination of the law and the facts.(52) The legislature, in 1898, vested the litigants with the right of taking any case from a court of appeal to the supreme court for review.(53) The court declared this law unconstitutional.(54)

The judges of the courts of appeal are empowered to issue writs of habeas corpus on behalf of all persons in actual custody within their circuit. They may also issue writs of mandamus, prohibition, certiorari and other remedial writs in aid of their appellate jurisdiction.(55) The supreme court has ruled that the power to supervise and control all inferior courts is vested exclusively in it, and a court of appeal may exercise that power only in aid of its appellate jurisdiction.(56)

The courts of appeal have no original jurisdiction to issue injunctions (57) nor may these courts by certiorari compel a district judge to grant an injunction or prohibition against a sale under executory, there being no appeal.(58) The courts of appeal may by mandamus compel a district judge to grant an appeal from an order refusing an injunction if the case is within their appellate jurisdiction; otherwise such an appeal must be made to the supreme court.(59) The courts of appeal may grant writs of habeas corpus in cases not within their appellate jurisdiction, but they may take only limited action and cannot reverse the judgment of the lower court.(60)

The courts of appeal are intermediate courts in the Louisiana judiciary and as such have appellate jurisdiction but only in civil and probate cases where the amount exceeds $100, exclusive of interest, and does not exceed $2,000, exclusive of interest, unless jurisdiction has been specifically vested in the supreme court and in certain other cases in which jurisdiction has been removed from the supreme court.(61) In order to understand the jurisdiction of the courts of appeal, one must know the powers vested in the supreme court and those specifically removed from its jurisdiction. The jurisdiction of the supreme court is original, appellate, and supervisory. Its original jurisdiction extends to the following: 1) disbarment of attorneys, 2) removal of judges of courts of record, and 3) determination of facts affecting its appellate jurisdiction.(62) The supreme court exercises appellate jurisdiction under these conditions: first, civil suits when the amount in dispute or fund to be distributed irrespective of the amount claimed exceeds $2,000, exclusive of interest, except in suits for damages for physical injuries to or for the death of a person or any other suits arising out of such circumstances by heirs or legal representatives and compensation suits under any state or federal workmen's compensation law or employer's liability act, second, suits for divorce or separation from bed and board and all matters arising therein, third, suits involving alimony, nullity of marriages, interdiction, tutorship of minors, curatorship of interdicts, legitimacy or custody of children, adoption and emancipation, fourth, cases involving homestead exemptions regardless of the amount involved except in respect to movable property alone; then jurisdiction is determined by the amount involved, fifth, constitutionality of any tax, local improvement assessment toll or impost levied by the state or any of its subdivisions is involved, sixth, legality of any fine, forfeiture or penalty imposed by a subdivision of the state, regardless of amount, is in contest, seventh, all cases in which a law of the state or an ordinance of any of its subdivisions has been voided, (63) eighth, appeals from the juvenile courts, (64) and ninth, in criminal cases whenever the penalty of death or imprisonment at hard labor may be imposed or a fine exceeding $300 or imprisonment exceeding 6 months has actually been imposed. (65) The supreme court has refused to take jurisdiction of cases involving physical pain and mental anguish resulting from accidents, but it has ruled that if there is only mental anguish appellate jurisdiction would be determined by the amount involved. (66) The supreme court has likewise refused to take jurisdiction over workmen's compensation cases. (67) An appeal from a judgment on a reconventional demand lies to the court having jurisdiction of the main demand. (68)

The Constitution of 1879 provided that a judgment of a lower court could be reversed only if both judges of the court of appeal concurred; otherwise the decision of the district court was affirmed. (69) This soon proved unsatisfactory, and a constitutional amendment adopted in 1882 required the court in case of a disagreement to call in a lawyer with qualifications of a court of appeal judge. (70) The Constitution of 1898 authorized the court of appeal to call in a district court judge or a lawyer having the qualifications of a court of appeal judge to sit in the case if for any reason two judges could not concur. (71) Since 1921, if a majority cannot agree for any reason, the remaining member or members must appoint a lawyer or lawyers with the qualifications of a judge of the court of appeal or a district court judge or judges to sit in the case. original record, pleadings and evidence in the district courts.(73) The supreme court has ruled that evidence is not admissible originally in an appellate court except for a determination of jurisdictional questions. If additional evidence is essential and was not admitted, the case will be remanded for the introduction of further evidence.(74) The courts of appeal will not consider any documentary evidence which was not offered in the lower courts and is not in the records, regardless of how offered.(75) In the absence of evidence in the records, the appellate court will presume that there was sufficient evidence to justify the judgment of the trial court.(76) However, all causes in the City Courts of Orleans Parish may be appealed to the Court of Appeal for the Parish of Orleans which must try such cases de novo if less than $100, exclusive of interest, is involved.(77) The court may also, under these conditions, decide immediately after trial and without a written opinion.(78) The judges of this court may by rule provide that one or more judges try such appeals.(79) If a case involves $100 but not more than $2,000, exclusive of interest, the appeal is heard in the same manner as provided for in the other two circuits.(80) The courts of appeal throughout the state hear appeals from city courts vested with civil jurisdiction if the amount in controversy exceeds $100, exclusive of interest.(81)

Originally it was mandatory for the clerk of the district court to serve as ex officio clerk of the court of appeal when that court met in his parish except for the Court of Appeal for the Parish of Orleans for which separate clerks were provided.(82) A constitutional amendment of 1906 provided that the clerks of the district courts should continue their duties as ex officio clerks of the courts of appeal until the legislature provided otherwise.(83) From 1896 until 1921, the clerk of the Court of Appeal for the Parish of Orleans was elected by the qualified voters of the circuit.(84) Since 1921, the judges of the first and second circuit courts of appeal have been authorized to either use the clerks of the district courts or to appoint separate clerks, but the judges of the Court of Appeal for the Parish of Orleans must appoint a clerk.(85) Each of the clerks of the courts of appeal receives a salary of $4,500 which includes salary and traveling expenses.(86) The clerk of the court of appeal is removable at will by the court making the appointment.(87)

The Constitution of 1879 required the court of appeal to hold two terms annually in each parish comprising the circuit,(88) and this was continued by the Constitution of 1898.(89) However, the Court of Appeal for the Parish of Orleans has always been required to hold its sessions in New Orleans.(90) A constitutional amendment of 1906 designated the places in which the courts of appeal for the first and second circuits were to sit but authorized them, in their discretion, to sit elsewhere. The court was also authorized to fix the time and place for the return of appeals.(91) The Constitution of 1921 fixed the domicile of the first circuit at Baton Rouge and the domicile of the second circuit at Shreveport and designated other places for each of these courts to sit, but they were authorized, in their discretion, to sit elsewhere.(92) The courts of appeal were further empowered to finally dispose of all cases at their respective domicile or at other places in the circuit.(93) These courts are now required to begin their sessions not later than the first Monday of October in each year and cannot adjourn before June 30th of the following year.(94)

erroneously transfer an appeal to the supreme court, the supreme court is required to transfer the case back to the court of appeal rather than dismiss the appeal.(96) If the appellant files an incomplete transcript or because of an error of the clerk or trial judge or for any technical reason, the appellee or another party files a motion to dismiss the appeal, the appellate court cannot do so until the appellant has been allowed 2 days, exclusive of holidays and Sundays, in which to correct the defects complained of.(97)

The courts of appeal are empowered to punish anyone disobeying or resisting its lawful restraining orders or injunctions with a fine not to exceed $1,000 or imprisonment not to exceed 1 year or both in the discretion of the court.(98) The district court is required to grant devolutive appeals on injunctions from an interlocutory order or decree. The district court may, in its discretion, grant a suspensive appeal from an order granting a preliminary injunction, but if the district court denies the application, the court of appeal having jurisdiction may grant the appeal in aid of its appellate jurisdiction.(99)

The rules of practice on appeals and proceedings in the supreme court are applicable to the courts of appeal unless the legislature specifically provides otherwise.(1) No systematic attempt was made to publish the reports of the courts of appeal until the Constitution of 1921, although some of the judges and certain individuals took it upon themselves to publish part of the reports.(2) The Constitution of 1921 provided that the decisions of the courts of appeal were to be reported and published together under the direction of the judges of said courts and under rules established by them.(3) The publication of the decisions of these courts was to be by contract and to the best bidder, who was not required to be a citizen of the state.(4)

The courts of appeal though authorized to review cases on the facts and the law have consistently ruled that questions of fact determined in the lower courts will be upheld unless "manifestly erroneous."(5) If there is a default, and it is confirmed, the court of appeal will presume that the judge acted on sufficient evidence.(6) Likewise the courts of appeal are reluctant to disturb a judgment of a lower court involving the credibility of parties and witnesses unless "clearly erroneous."(7) The jurisdiction of the courts of appeal is determined by the real and not the fictitious amount involved; therefore if the damage demands are inflated or "grossly exaggerated," they will be reduced "to something near the probable amount which could be awarded if a liability exists."(8)

Although the organization and jurisdiction of the courts of appeal have undergone a haphazard development, they are now held in high esteem by scholars and members of the bar. Originally their jurisdiction was restricted to cases involving $200 to $1,000 except for cases in which jurisdiction was specifically vested in the supreme court.(9) A constitutional amendment of 1882 extended the jurisdiction of the courts of appeal to cases involving more than $100 but did not exceed $2,000, exclusive of interest.(10) The courts of appeal have an important place in the state judicial system and have served the purpose for which they were created, that is, to relieve the supreme court of so many cases which were congesting its docket, thus impeding the proper administration of justice.(11) The late Mr. J. Fair Hardin, expressed the high esteem in which the courts of appeal are now held. He said: "The Courts of Appeal have become concededly an essential and increasingly more important element of our judicial system. Their accessibility, simplicity and economy of functioning and dispatch of ever-growing business continually increase their favor with both bar and litigants, while their earnestness, diligence and the soundness of their opinions warrant the growing esteem in which they are now held."(12)

DISTRICT ELECTORATE

NOTES ON CHART OF THE LOUISIANA JUDICIARY

1. _____ Elective line.

_____ Civil and probate cases when the matter in dispute or fund to be distributed exceeds $2,000 (certain exceptions), exclusive of interest appealable to the supreme court. Criminal cases are appealable direct to the supreme court on questions of law whenever the penalty of death or imprisonment at hard labor may be imposed or where a fine exceeding $300 or imprisonment exceeding 6 months is actually imposed. It has appellate jurisdiction over many other enumerated subjects, as well as original and supervisory jurisdiction under certain conditions.(1)

..... The courts of appeal have only appellate jurisdiction in probate and civil cases involving $100 to $2,000 exclusive of interest as well as in all cases from the city courts where the amount exceeds $100 exclusive of interest.(2)

..... The supreme court exercises control over the appellate courts in 3 respects: 1) under its supervisory powers, 2) if jurisdictional questions are involved, and 3) if the courts of appeal certify causes to it for determination on points of law. The judgments of the juvenile courts, except for the Parish of Orleans, are appealable direct to the supreme court but only on points of law.(3)
2. The state is divided into six supreme court districts from which the seven justices are elected.(4)
3. The First and Second Circuit Courts of Appeal are composed of three districts from each of which a judge is elected.(5)
4. The Court of Appeal for the Parish of Orleans serves the parishes of Orleans, St. James, St. John the Baptist, St. Charles, Jefferson, Plaquemines, and

St. Bernard. It is composed of 3 judges elected at large. Its appellate jurisdiction is very similar to the other appellate courts.(6)

5. The state has 28 judicial districts and the Civil District Court and Criminal District Court of the Parish of Orleans. The Court of Appeal which hears appeals from the various judicial district is indicated. The judges of these courts are elected for 6 years. The number of judges and parishes for each district varies.(7) Two judicial districts do not follow the pattern set up in the chart. In the Eleventh Judicial District appeals from De Soto and Sabine are heard by the Second Circuit Court of Appeal while appeals from Vernon are heard by the First Circuit Court of Appeal. In the Twenty-Third Judicial District appeals from Ascension and Assumption are heard by the First Circuit Court of Appeal, whereas appeals from St. James are heard by the Court of Appeal for the Parish of Orleans.(8)

HOUSING, CARE, AND ACCESSIBILITY OF THE RECORDS

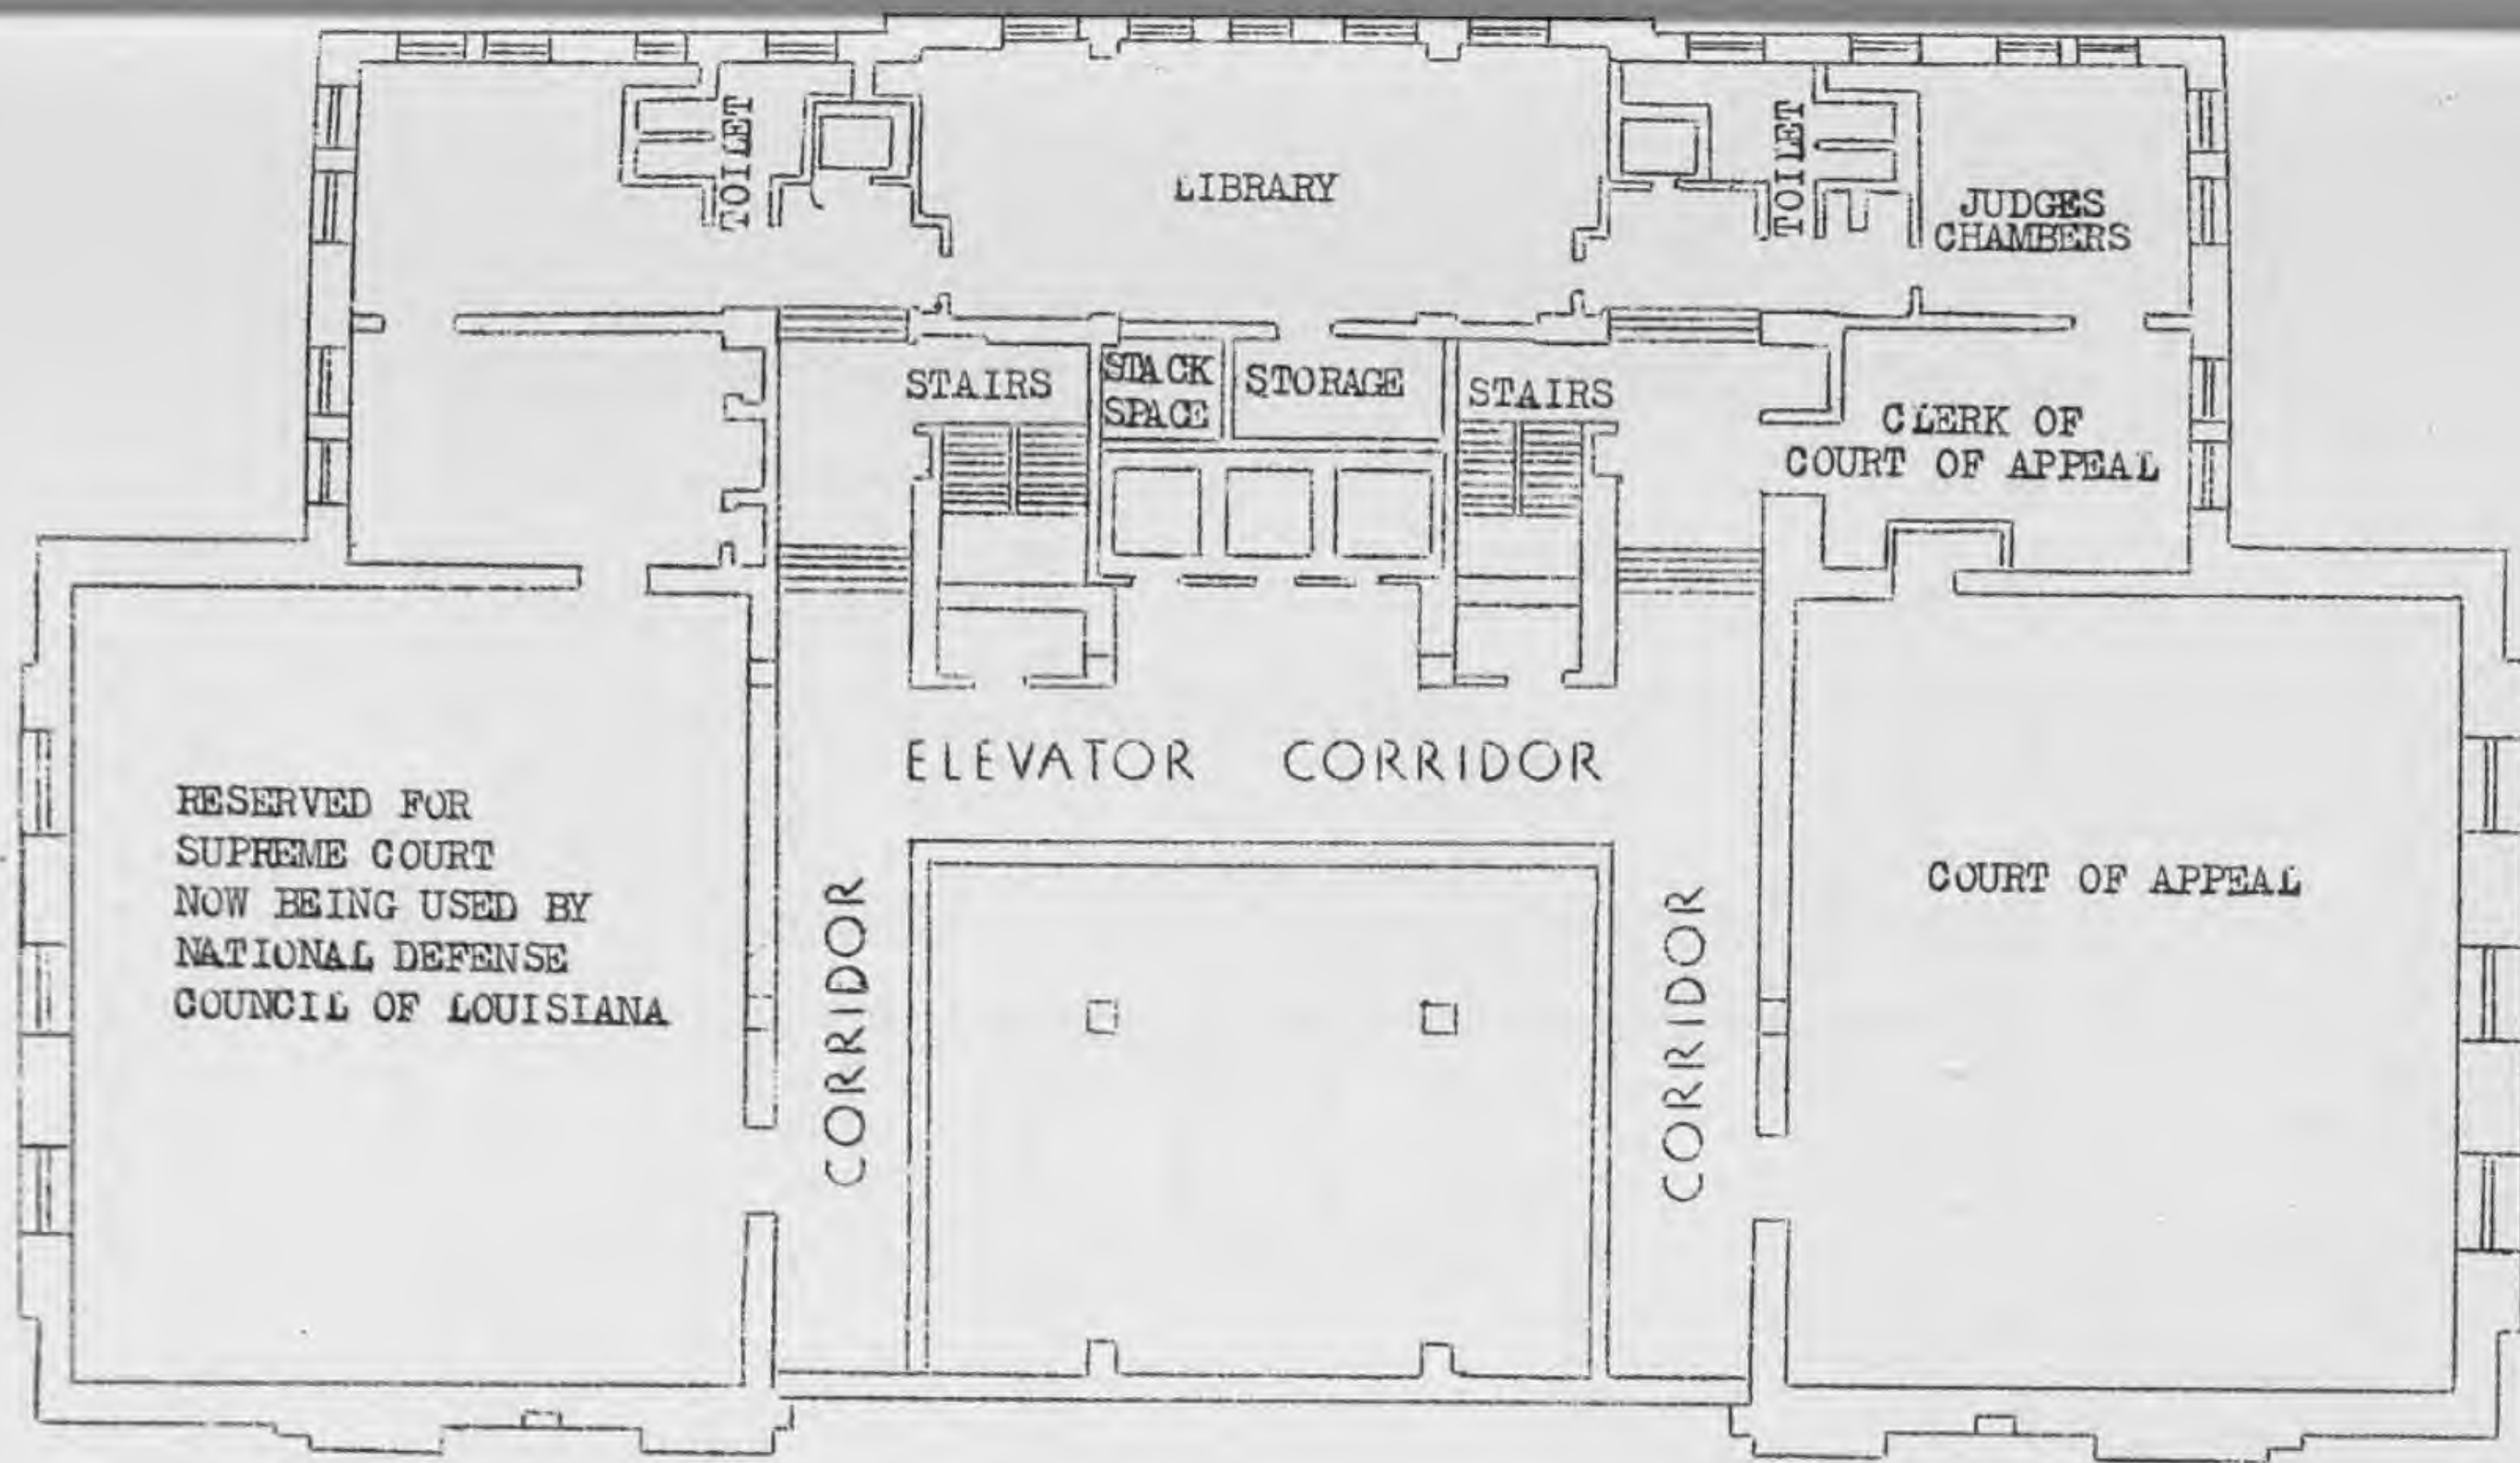

Since the courts of appeal have undergone fundamental changes in organization, it is only reasonable to expect that the records of these tribunals will be scattered throughout the state. Because of the wide discretion vested in the courts in determining where and when appeals from the district courts will be heard, one often finds differences in the various circuits. From 1880-1906 the courts of appeal were required to meet in each parish of the state. This did not apply to the Court of Appeal for the Parish of Orleans. From 1880-98 this circuit was composed only of Orleans Parish. The Constitution of 1898 provided that effective August 1, 1900, appeals from the parishes of Jefferson, St. Charles, Plaquemines and St. Bernard would be heard by the Court of Appeal for the Parish of Orleans. A constitutional amendment adopted in 1906, effective 1907, added St. James and St. John the Baptist to the Orleans circuit. This amendment, in addition, divided the rest of the state into two circuits and established returning points but allowed the judges in their discretion to designate other returning points and to determine when and where the appeals would be heard. The Constitution of 1921 fixed a domicile for each of the circuits, but the judges were nevertheless authorized to hear and finally dispose of all appeals at the domicile or at such other places as the court might by rule designate. This will explain the discrepancies in the records. Often a case was argued at one place and finally determined at another.

From 1907-26 the official docket for the first circuit is at the district or returning points, designated by law or the court and from 1926-- at the domicile in Baton Rouge. In the second circuit the official docket 1907-21 is at the district or returning points and after 1921 at the domicile at Shreveport. The Court of Appeal for the Parish of Orleans has always sat in the City of New Orleans. The parishes within that circuit have separate records for the period prior to their being joined to the Orleans circuit. There are similar discrepancies in respect to the minute books. Some of the clerks of the district courts continued to keep up the docket book for their own convenience and use, hence the overlap in many parishes.

The Constitution of 1921 established domiciles for the courts of appeal, the first circuit at Baton Rouge, the second circuit at Shreveport and the Court of Appeal for the Parish of Orleans at New Orleans and here the more recent records for the circuits will be found. The records at the domiciles are kept in fireproof buildings and in the offices of the clerks of the courts of appeal. The other records will be found in the offices of the clerks of court of the district courts in the various parishes of the state in which these courts sat.
